

Community Service Update : December 2015

This is Mrs. Anderson encouraging you to participate in any community service opportunities you can over the holiday season. Many of you are very diligent about submitting your community service hours to me and I encourage you to keep up the good work. Please remember you need 10 hours of service before you graduate and if you document 100 hours or more you will receive special recognition on your KUSD diploma for your efforts.

Many of you are wondering how to check to see that your hours are in the computer. To check this, please go to Infinite Campus and look under assessments (NOT Community Service like you'd expect) In the assessment tab you will see community service learning and a scale score. The scale score is the total amount of hours you have logged. So if you see a scale score of 8 that means you have 8 hours of community service so far.

Lastly, it is my goal to input all community service papers that have been handed in over the last year and a half by the end of the first semester. (Sorry this deadline keeps moving back.) BUT this is a firm deadline. Therefore, when you go to check your community service hours in February, they should be accurate. If they are not, please have your student see me in the counseling office room 108 at their convenience. We'll go over all paperwork I have and correct any mistakes if needed. Thank you for your time, patients and effort in making service learning something meaningful in Kenosha.
